The thrust is on five areas viz. affordability, accessibility, quality, equity, and accountability thereby facilitating continual learning. It addresses the demand for knowledge in society and economy and the clarion call for new skills; thereby providing quality education and holistic productivity. Following the principles of transparency, self-disclosure, hand holding, mentoring, incubation and quality improvement; it aims for strengthening infrastructure for open and distance learning, online education and increasing the use of technology in education. It endorses opportunities for all, productive employment and decent work as listed in United Nations Sustainable Development Goals 2030. The new policy replaces the previous National Policy on Education, 1986 and forms a comprehensive framework to transform both elementary and higher education in India by 2040.
